FROM ISIS to the economy, Obamacare to immigration, America seethes with frustration over the state we find ourselves in a nation after these last seven years. These realities have caused many Americans to consider for President a man whose brash speech reflects the anger we rightly feel as we see our nation in rapid decline. However, I submit that what our country needs is not another strongman who, like the current president, will run roughshod over the Constitution. Nor do we need a "moderate" establishment candidate who only moderately slow our pace over the cliff. What we need is a return to the Constitutional principles that, along with the blessing of God, have made our country great. There is one man in the race that stands out in his knowledge of and respect for the Constitution. That man is Ted Cruz, and I respectfully ask you to consider giving him your vote. Tim Wagner.
