WHAT WILL socialism be like? There is nothing in the world today that we may point to and say "Socialism will be like this." Socialism does not now exist, and it never has existed anywhere in the world. It will be a completely new social order, with new administrative instructions thought which democratically to plan and direct the social production of our industrial age in the interest of all society. Private (and State) property and profit having been eliminated entirely, there will be no way for social parasites, capitalist or bureaucratic, to exist. In short, it will no longer be possible for any individual or group to secure the economic power that would make possible the exploitation of another human being.
